Connecting on the Courts: Business Women Love Tennis and Agape Tennis Academy Partner to Bring Atlanta Business Women Together for Networking and Tennis.

(Atlanta, GA ---- June 24, 2019) --- Business Women Love Tennis (BWLT), a high-performance, personal growth brand created by strategist and speaker Sheronde Glover hosted its second Business and Tennis Clinic on Friday, June 21st at Dekalb Tennis Center in conjunction with Agape Tennis Academy.

A group of diverse women ----- entrepreneurs, business owners, and career women ---- came together for a morning of business and tennis drills. The clinic, Enhancing Your Network: The Power of Connection was 2.5 hours of networking, tennis drills, food, fun and music.

Participants were able to connect, collaborate and enjoy it all on the tennis courts, then reflect on what they learned and how it applies in business and life.

“We had an awesome time at the Business Women Love Tennis event. Agape is all about community and bringing people together through tennis as well as empowering and supporting fellow women”, says Amy Pazahanick, CEO of Agape Tennis Center.

“Congratulations on another successful event. My disposition is so much better having started my day with the energy and workout”, stated Loretta Patrick, one of BWLT’s founding members.

BWLT, a newly launched brand and subsidiary of The Business Practitioner uses techniques and strategies from tennis as a tool to inspire women to Play Their Best Game so they can win in all areas of life. BWLT offers business and tennis clinics, personal and professional development training, a membership, and a signature coaching program.

The clinics are hosted each quarter and are themed around the brands four principles: Compete, Connect, Collaborate, Celebrate. The next Clinic is scheduled for September. Individuals wanting more information can visit www.businesswomenlovetennis.com.
